County Dispatch Center Still Waiting For Phones

By Lou Marzeles

Months after a new emergency dispatch center for Klickitat County opened in Goldendale, dispatchers are still holed up in the basement of the courthouse because the center's new emergency telephone system remains skeletal and non-functioning.

A pattern has emerged of epic mismanagement, confusion, miscommunication, apathy, incompetence, and finger-pointing among the four companies entrusted with getting the 9-1-1 phone system into the new dispatch center, according to many close to the situation.

"There is no good reason why this isn't done yet," says County Commissioner Jim Sizemore.

Adcomm Engineering based in Bothell, Wash., is the company centrally charged with the phone project. Adcomm has been working with CenturyLink, which holds a contract for the state of Washington through the Department of Homeland Security for 9-1-1 services; Intrado, a nationwide company specializing in handling 9-1-1 telecommunications; and Combix, a company that provides 9-1-1 phone systems.

While word is that each company has blamed the others for critical delays, CenturyLink has emerged as a center of focus. The phone giant is already dealing with fallout from an overnight collapse of the Washington state 9-1-1 system on April 10. CenturyLink says the failure was caused by a technical error in a third-party vendor's call router.

Martin Flynn, CenturyLink's Marketing and PR Manager for Northern Oregon/Southern Washington, Tuesday maintained that CenturyLink is not at fault. "This has nothing to do with us," Flynn said. "All of our circuits are there and working and have been for months."

The interminable delays involve a trail of components for the phone system that involve intricate interdependencies among the four companies. Missing or non-working parts, missed deadlines, and inept communications have obfuscated the process from the beginning. Generally the problems are not impacting the county's finances, Sizemore indicates.

"The big issue is the delay," he says. "We've told them that the only entity hurting here is Klickitat County and the citizens living here."

Still, at least one bill has been presented to the county for work yet to be completed. Combix sent a team to Goldendale recently to train personnel in the use of its phone systems, only to find the phone system was still not completely in place. The team stayed about week, left, and then sent a bill for close to $20,000 to the county, according to Klickitat County Emergency Services Director Ed Powell. Sizemore says he wants to find a way to hold responsible parties accountable for the bill.

There appears to be no central person in clear control of the process among the four companies, from what Powell and Sizemore indicate, notwithstanding Adcomm's ostensible role. As a result, communication has been and remains hopelessly bungled.

"We had a conference call with the four companies," Sizemore says, characterizing his tone in the collective conversation as very firm. "The call started off with people saying the problem was somebody else's fault." The meeting got on track, finally. "The result of that was an agreement to have weekly conference calls from then on, to keep communication going," Sizemore says.

Powell adds the calls kept getting cancelled. "One company would say something like, 'We don't have this ready, so we can't make the call,' and then next time another company would say something similar." The result was that most often the calls just didn't happen.

So what's the fix and when does it happen? "I have no expectation of a date," Sizemore states. "I did expect weekly reports, but that's not happening."

Dove Season: A Jimmy Veeder Fiasco
by Johnny Shaw

Jimmy Veeder grew up in the Imperial Valley, on the border of California and Mexico. He hasn't been back since high school, hasn't accomplished much in life except for moving from crappy job to crappier job. He has kept in touch with his Dad, who is still farming the family spread and one day Jimmy gets a message that Dad is sick. The End sick.

So Jimmy goes home to help Dad get to The End.

Dad has a last request. Jimmy has to go over into Mexico to find a prostitute named Yolanda and bring her back to visit Dad in the nursing home. He manages to track her down and she arrives to meet with Dad one last time. They spend a couple hours together, alone in Dad's room at the nursing home. Dad is pleased.

He passes away soon after. A huge wake is held at the bar across the street from Jimmy's childhood home and Yolanda attends. After drinking to blackout, Jimmy wakes up to find Yolanda dead in his cistern.

Events begin to spiral rapidly out of control with Jimmy and his old high school friend Bobby at the center of it all.

This is, surprisingly, a laugh out loud, rapid fire romp of violence through the underbelly of Mexican economics.

As Jimmy Veeder says, "Somebody needs to cash a reality check."

This is the author's first book and I hope he hurries up and writes his next one.

Track Chair for a Hero

Track Chair for a Hero is a project launched by a local association of people to purchase a specialized wheel chair for an injured veteran. The chair gives greater mobility than a standard chair, allowing one to traverse rougher terrain. Jereme Sawyer, of Rochester was chosen as the recipient of the first chair. The project organizers hope to inspire other around the northwest to duplicate the project. Sawyer, who lost both his legs at the knees following a roadside bomb explosion during a deployment to Afghanistan.

The chair will allow Sawyer far greater mobility, a small down payment on the debt this country owes to all our wounded warriors who have pledged "their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor" to purchase freedom and security for the rest of us.

Donations for the track chair fund may be sent to: Sterling Bank, 201 W. Main Street, Goldendale, WA 98620. For more information contact Rodger Nichols at rodger@haystackbroadcasting.com or call 541-296-9102.

Lyle Lions Breakfast

By Mildred Lykens

On Saturday, May 3, the Lyle Lions Club will have a special donation box available for their "White Cane Awareness Day". This is their annual May fundraiser for the Northwest Lions Foundation. The proceeds are used to offset the cost of screening adults and children for vision loss, glaucoma, and diabetes; which is a leading cause of blindness. They serve great made-to-order omelets or ham and eggs, both with all the pancakes you can eat. $6 for adults or $3 for children six to 12 and free to children under six. Regular proceeds benefit our own community of Lyle assisting with the needs of fire victims, such as clothes or food; plus each year the Lion's provide scholarships for our high school seniors. This is a good time to not only support an important cause but also enjoy the company of your neighbors as you dive into a make-your-tummy-happy breakfast!

SAR Volunteers Complete Training

On April 8, Klickitat County Sheriff Chief Criminal Deputy Pat Kaley thanked the volunteer students at the Klickitat County Search & Rescue Basic Training Academy Graduation in Goldendale. Chief Deputy Kaley and SAR Coordinator Jeff King praised the many volunteers for their dedication and long hours, noting that their level of training made them specialists that lifted an enormous workload from the Sheriff's Office and the deputies.

The 2014 academy training took more than 10 weeks from January through April and included more than 70 hours of training and testing. Training topics included land navigation, rescue and evacuation, SAR team survival, lost person behavior, communications, search techniques and helicopter operation along with many others.

There are now 11 new KCSAR members mission qualified and ready to respond to the needs of our citizens. Congratulations to Mike Adelmund, Don Bellamy, Ed Cornell, Justine Ewer, Debbie Ireland, Dick Rogers, Rick Sexton, Christine Unrue, Ilan Wilde, Bette Wilde and Cheyenne Willey!

Klickitat County Search & Rescue Volunteers are looking forward to continued success in 2014. For information about joining the Klickitat County Search & Rescue Team contact the Sheriff's Office at (509) 773-4455.

Lakes Stocked For April 26 Opener

Trout fishing in Washington hits full throttle April 26, when several hundred lowland lakes - stocked with millions of fish - open for a six-month season.

Although many waterways are open year-round, the fourth Saturday in April marks the traditional start of the lowland lakes fishing season. Hundreds of thousands of anglers are expected to turn out for the big day. Freshwater fishing licenses cost $29.50 for resident adults 16 to 69 years old. Fifteen-year-olds can buy a license for $8.05, and seniors 70 and older can buy an annual freshwater fishing license for $7.50. Children 14 years of age and younger do not need a fishing license.

Fish stocking details, by county and lake, are available at <http://wdfw.wa.gov/fishing/plants/statewide/>.

Solar 4R School Goes Live!

The new solar project at the Lyle Secondary School is now up and running! This solar project was funded by a grant from the Bonneville Environmental Foundation and it allows us to produce electricity from the sun. 249 photovoltaic systems are now in place throughout the country! This system will not only decrease the amount of money the school spends on electric bills, it will be a valuable learning resource for our students.

The Bonneville Environmental Foundation also supplied our high school with $3000 of instructional equipment and curriculum. Training for teachers and staff on the equipment and curriculum was held on April 22nd. Science classes will soon be implementing the "Renewable Classroom" program.

A Big Thank You!

We would like to say a very big "THANK YOU" to everyone that turned out to help with the Lyle/Wishram hosted Middle School Track Meet. Members from the Lyle/Wishram High School track team and the Lyle/Wishram High School Softball teams, showed up to support and run the events for the Middle School Track Team. Due to lack of volunteers the Dallesport Murdock Community Council was forced to cancel our Easter Egg Hunt this year. We tried to notify the community that we sent all of the candy to the Lyons Club in Lyle to be used for their egg hunt. We sincerely hope that this decision did not inconvenience anyone and hope that we will be able to find volunteers for next year. If there is anyone interested in volunteering an hour or two for any of our programs, please call or email any of the above Council members. Thank you.
