Three Lyle High School Students Earn Insitu Summer Internships

Three Lyle High School students will gain hands-on work experience with one of the fastest-growing and best-paying employers in the mid-Columbia Gorge this summer. Insitu has selected Zachary Miller, Max Zeigler and Riley Mills for paid internships in the information technology, product training and facilities departments.

This year, Insitu's expanded internship program put more emphasis on the trades than in years past; the company invited hard-working, promising students considering going into the trades or two-year degree programs, as well as those considering four-year colleges, to apply. The internship is intended to give students real-world work experience in industrial technology careers and enhance the future employment opportunities.

Superintendent Andrew Kelly expressed his appreciation to Insitu for opening up new opportunities to kids who will truly benefit from this program. "In a job market that ordinarily offers only a substantial personal and professional growth in these young men as a direct result of the mentorship Insitu is providing."

Like any organization, Insitu has a broad range of tasks they need performed to keep the company operating smoothly, resulting in multiple career opportunities. While the common perception is that Insitu internships are primarily for upcoming engineers, Lyle students' placements reflect the diverse opportunities the company offers:

Riley Mills, who will be a junior this coming year, was placed in the Insitu Facilities Department internship, where he will provide support for office moves and reconfigurations and gain experience in equipment repair and maintenance. He'll work with staff conducting facility and equipment inspections and sign-off on safety equipment like AED's, eye wash stations and fire extinguishers. He will also be assigned a mentor to help build his knowledge of the trades he will be working in. Riley has taken advantage of Career and Technical Education narrow range of employment opportunities, these Lyle High School students will gain first-hand exposure to the inner workings of a ground-breaking company with truly international reach. I expect to witness

(CTE) courses offered at Lyle High School, particularly construction and wood shop, making him a great candidate for this position.

Incoming senior Zachary Miller has been placed in the product training department, where he will work with staff to support continuous improvement projects. Zach's goal following graduation is to major in environmental engineering and noted in his application that he envisions drones playing a crucial research role in his field, including studying wildlife. The first-hand knowledge of current and potential uses of unmanned aircraft Zach will gain in the internship should only expand his awareness and spark ideas for additional possibilities.

Max Zeigler, also an incoming senior, has displayed an aptitude for technology in the past three years with Lyle High School. His career interests include coding, game design, and computer support, and his assignment to the Information Technology (IT) Department is a great fit. He'll spend the next 10 weeks troubleshooting and servicing hardware, software, telecommunications and audio/visual equipment. Max will also install desktop computers and software, as well as peripheral equipment, and configure those systems. Currently, Max is undecided between technical school and college, but this early career exposure should help him gain additional clarity about the kind of post-secondary education he needs.

Students from surrounding communities will fill six other internship slots with Insitu this summer in departments ranging from the machine shop, operational curriculum and the warehouse, to the print shop/marketing and, yes -- electrical engineering.

Book Report

By Judy Bane

“Some Kind of Hero”

by Suzanne Brockmann

Suzanne Brockmann's books are thrillers with a good romance intertwined. They are well crafted page turners that are hard to put down. She writes about Navy Seals with realistic plots and storylines. She includes alternative lifestyles in her books and advocates awareness and tolerance. Fast paced, action packed and full of just plain good people. I wait anxiously for her new books and can't read them fast enough.

The Troubleshooters return in the latest thriller from New York Times bestselling author Suzanne Brockmann! Some Kind of Hero showcases Brockmann's signature white-knuckle suspense, romantic twists, and sexy Navy SEALs.

Navy men don't come tougher than Lieutenant Peter Greene. Every day he whips hotshot SEAL wannabes into elite fighters. So why can't he handle one fifteen-year-old girl? His ex's death left him a single dad overnight, and very unprepared. Though he can't relate to an angsty teen, he can at least keep Maddie safe - until the day she disappears. Though Pete's lacking in fatherly intuition, his instinct for detecting danger is razor sharp. Maddie's in trouble. Now he needs the Troubleshooters team at his back, along with an unconventional ally.

Romance writer Shayla Whitman never expected to be drawn into a real-world thriller - or meet a hero who makes her pulse pound. Action on the page is one thing. Actually living it is another story. Shay's not as bold as her heroines, but she's a mother. She sees the panic in her new neighbor's usually fearless blue eyes - and knows there's no greater terror for a parent than having their child at risk. It's an ordeal Shay won't let Pete face alone. She's no highly trained operative, but she's smart, resourceful, and knows what makes teenagers tick.

Still, working alongside Pete has its own perils - like letting the heat between them rise out of control. Intimate emotions could mean dangerous, even deadly, consequences for their mission. No matter what, they must be on top of their game, and playing for keeps . . . or else Pete's daughter may be gone for good.

Big Brothers Big Sisters

Big Brothers Big Sisters of the Columbia Gorge is program of The Next Door. The program matches adult volunteers with youth who would benefit from friendship, support, and guidance. If you would enjoy spending about 8 hours a month being a friend to a child, you can be a mentor!

Youth in the program come from every community in Hood River, Klickitat, and Wasco Counties. These youth benefit from consistent, positive adult role models. Many are from single-parent homes and are between the ages of 6 and 14. Your support can help children have higher aspirations, gain greater confidence, and achieve educational success. You have the power to change the life of a child for the better, forever!

There are Little Brothers and Little Sisters waiting to make a new friend. The time to become a volunteer mentor is now!

Community Council Report for Meeting 8 June 2017

Suzy Wilson, co-owner of Wild Weed, the first licensed marijuana-grow operation in Klickitat County, was our speaker. She explained the strenuous handling requirements for their products, and the tight security they employ. There are eighteen licensed growers state-wide, employing about 170 full-time workers, and fifty to sixty seasonal helpers. The State coffers bring in about $1.42 million dollars in yearly revenue from the sale of marijuana products.

Questions came up about proper zoning for certain businesses, and about abuse of the Right-of-Way for storage purposes. A Compliance Officer will be invited to a future meeting, to discuss this issue and that of unkempt properties.

Almost two-thirds of the available water hook-ups in the Dallesport area are currently in use (289/459). Once the well is in at the Mid-Columbia Regional Airport, the number of hook-ups will increase to about 1,500, allowing for more growth of both housing stock and business facilities.

Please join us for the next Council meeting on July 13th. 7pm at the Dallesport Community Center.

Point of Contact

Bill Morris

The latest development scheduled by The Yakama Nation Housing Authority has brought about a new point of contact for questions that our community may have.

savedallesportwa@yahoo.com is the new point of contact for emailed questions and concerns regarding that development as well as the actions and activities that will take place over the next few years by the US Army Corps of Engineers

The Dallesport – Murdock Community Council's appointed Facilitator, WJ Morris, said the first goal is to get our community informed the fastest way possible. Second is to get questions and comments handled in a very fast and efficient way.

Other examples of what can be handled on the new email, will be if any resident needs a copy of a flyer or material that either the Yakama Nation Housing Authority or the US Army Corp of Engineers has had at our meetings, he will have it scanned into files and can email it to residents. This will help save time and money over the years long process of these projects.

Lyle Community

Garden Is Growing!

With just a few days left in the 2016-2017 school year, the Lyle community garden has been getting a lot of TLC this month in preparation for the start of the next school year.

With new planter boxes – fruit boxes donated by Underwood Fruit & Warehouse Co. and Mt. Adams Orchard – filled with five cubic yards of gorgeous potting soil provided by Dirt Hugger, the school put out the call for plants. French's Nursery in Lyle responded generously with a variety of plant starts.

Thanks also go to Robert Taylor who transported the boxes to the school, to Alfredo Pérez, who cut the boxes in half to make two-foot high planters just right for our younger students, Lyle secondary students who helped get the dirt moved into the planter boxes, and to the Gorge Community Foundation, which has provided funding for establishing the garden.

Now that that there are some freshly prepared garden beds, staff are working to get them planted so that there will be fresh veggies ready to harvest when kids are back in school in late August.

If you're looking for something rewarding to do this summer, consider helping the staff with garden care. While there are year-round staff at the school who are willing to weed and water, extra help during the weekends and vacations would be appreciated! Send an email to deb.stenberg@lyleschools.org or call 509-365-2191.

Washington State Bike Safety

Grant Funds Bikes and

Training for Students

A grant totaling nearly $22,000 has purchased a small bicycle fleet for Lyle Community School students' use, a trailer to store them, and curriculum to teach students safe bicycle use.

The bikes and the safety program are both thanks to OSPI's Safe Routes to School: Bike and Pedestrian Safety Education program, which is made possible by a grant from the Washington State Department of Transportation. OSPI collaborated with Feet First and Cascade Bicycle Club to provide training and materials to Lyle and other funded districts.

The goal of the program is to improve safety and encourage more students in grades 5–8 to safely walk and bicycle to school. In the process, the programs are working to reduce traffic congestion and improve student health and the environment, increase student academic success, increase attendance, and make communities more livable for everyone.

Gavin McBride from Enlighten Cycles in Hood River recently visited Lyle Community School to teach students about bike safety and maintenance. The kids learned about helmet fitting, seat height adjustment, how to check and fill proper tire pressure, how to remove and reattach the front tires and brake, hand signals, and proper etiquette for riding with motor vehicles and other bikes. Each class received 55 minutes of instruction from McBride, who is a professional expert bicyclist who volunteered his time to teach the kids.

Following McBride's training, students in physical education have been practicing their bike riding skills on an obstacle course set up next to the school. Other uses for the bikes are in the works, including a summer biking program. Stay tuned, and be sure to share the road with bicyclists.

New Life Flight Hangar Finally Takes Wing

By Jesse Burkhardt

A group of dignitaries, gathered on June 7th, to celebrate the groundbreaking of a new 15,000-square-foot “flex hangar” at the Columbia Gorge Regional Airport. The new facility is expected to be ready in about six months. Inset, Life Flight crew members give a “thumbs up” as they visit the site for their new headquarters. Left to right are Shannon Louk, nurse; Randall Behre, paramedic; Marin Gurnee, nurse; and Dustin Morantes, pilot. Photo by Jesse Burkhardt.

A group of dignitaries picked up their golden shovels and marked the official groundbreaking for the construction of a new aircraft hangar at the Columbia Gorge Regional Airport in Dallesport.

The hangar is primarily designed for the Life Flight Network, an air ambulance service.

The $1.8 million project will provide Life Flight with enough room to bring both of their emergency aircraft — a helicopter and a fixed wing airplane — indoors and out of the elements. The building will also provide expanded and enhanced living quarters for the crews that staff Life Flight around the clock.

The parties involved in planning for the facility said the groundbreaking was a long time coming, and they were clearly in a mood to celebrate.

“We’ve been working on this concept for two and a half to three years,” said Jacob Dalstra, regional director for Life Flight.

“It feels great to break ground. When we got our final permit last week, it was a good day. There were numerous delays, but we’re finally here,” said Chuck Covert one of the airport managers. “Everything is in order, and we’re moving along as quickly as we can.”

Covert said the 15,000-square foot facility is expected to be completed within six to eight months. The Life Flight operation will take up almost half -- 7,400 square feet -- of the new hangar, with the other 7,600 square feet being made available to a commercial tenant.

Airport officials pointed out that demand for space at the airport has been growing in recent months.

“Once we have this done, it will make this a permanent base for Life Flight,” said Covert. “That’s why it’s so important for the community to get it done.”

One of the main reasons the new hangar was needed was a basic safety consideration. Aircraft parked outdoors are susceptible to damaging weather conditions, including ice and snow.

“To have these aircraft in a hangar will definitely be a benefit,” said Shannon Louk, a Life Flight nurse stationed in Dallesport.

“In winter, it will save time. It’s way more efficient.”

Life Flight pilot Dustin Morantes agreed.

“If an aircraft is outside, it may be caked with ice and snow,” Morantes said.

“But if it’s in a hangar, as soon as the taxiways are plowed, we can pull out and go.”

Klickitat County and the city of The Dalles jointly own the airport, and the two entities have been working in partnership with the Mid-Columbia Economic Development District (MCEDD) to move the infrastructure project forward.

Klickitat County and The Dalles split the cost of the new hangar 50-50. In addition, MCEDD applied for a federal grant from the U.S. Department of Commerce’s Economic Development Administration, which contributed $625,000 for the facility.

Black Rock Construction of Moses Lake, Wash., is the contractor on the project.

Tim Gibbons, Life Flight’s customer service manager, said the hangar will bring a sense of permanence to the network’s operations out of Dallesport.

“We opened this base eight years ago and started flying in the area,” Gibbons explained. “Life Flight is committed to making sure residents of the community have access to quick transport and skilled care. This shows our commitment to the area. We’re here to stay and to serve, along with our partners Mid-Columbia Medical Center and Mid-Columbia Fire & Rescue.”

“We’re thrilled to actually break ground,” said Jim Wilcox, chair of the airport board. “There were a lot of hitches and false starts, so thanks to Life Flight for being patient and working with us. When we’re done, this will add jobs.”

Klickitat County Commissioner David Sauter said the new hangar will bring multiple benefits to the area.

“It’s a health and safety issue as much as an economic development issue,” Sauter said. “Life Flight will be an anchor tenant in the (airport) business park, and it’s easier to imagine more businesses locating there once the first one is there. We see the airport and the Dallesport area as the focus of economic development activities in the central part of the county.”

Sauter added that he appreciates Life Flight’s ongoing commitment to the region.

“This has been a long haul for us,” he said. “Life Flight stuck with us to get to this day I knew we would get to.”

Class of 2017 Sets Out with the Wind Beneath Their Wings

Fourteen seniors walked in Lyle High School's graduation ceremony on Saturday, June 3, in the Lyle School Gym as a crowd of staff, family and friends looking on. They carried with them dreams and plans ranging from pre-med to a two-year nursing degree, dental assistant, medical and x-ray technology to military service, entering the work force immediately to studying engineering and other pursuits at community colleges, vocational schools and four-year universities.

Our graduates are following their dreams as close as home in the gorge and as far away as Hawaii and Taiwan. We are proud of our scholarship winners earning a collective $68,750.00. We are especially grateful for the outpouring of financial support from the local community organizations that show their confidence in our graduates and our community!

Congratulations and much respect to the Lyle High School Class of 2017. Wherever they go, we know they are prepared to contribute their talents and skills to our community, state and country. Go, Cougars!
